Emotion Regulation Skills

P.L.E.A.S.E.

The health of your body and mind are well connected. An unhealthy body can contribute to difficulty managing emotions. The following acronym can help you remember core skills of managing your health in order to manage your emotions.

Paying Attention to Positive Events

It is often natural or common to pay attention to negative aspects of our lives versus good/positive things. Sometimes we pay attention to criticism more than compliments.

If you find yourself focusing on various negative aspects of your experiences, try to stop, take a deep breath, and focus on the positive. You can practice this by doing a small positive activity daily and take time to acknowledge the good in it (even if it doesn’t go exactly like you hoped for). Focus on the strengths of that moment, and don’t let minor problems ruin it.

Adding one or two positive activities a day or week will help create more happiness over time. Below are some examples of quick positive activities you can practice:

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Visit your roommate, close friend, or family member.</th>
<th>Go for a walk, jog, or bike ride.</th>
<th>Watch your favorite movie or TV show.</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Color or draw; engage yourself in art.</td>
<td>Listen to music without doing anything else but listen.</td>
<td>Go have a picnic at a park or the beach.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Try a new hobby: something you’ve never tried before.</td>
<td>Read a book, comic book, newspaper, journal article, etc.</td>
<td>Have your favorite meal without any distractions.</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>
Opposite Action

When you experience an emotion, there may be a behavior that follows it. Our bodies react to emotions or feelings in specific ways. For example, if you are angry, you might fight or argue; if you are sad, you might isolate or withdraw.

Doing the opposite action can help us change our emotions. If our immediate reaction is to yell when we are angry/frustrated, try to talk in a calm or quiet tone. If you withdraw when you are sad, make a point to visit a friend next time you feel this way.

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Emotion</th>
<th>Action</th>
<th>Opposite Action</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Fear</td>
<td>Avoid/Run away</td>
<td>Approach: go anyway and participate fully</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Anger</td>
<td>Attack</td>
<td>Gently avoid, be kind, see their perspective</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Sadness</td>
<td>Isolate/Withdraw</td>
<td>Be with others, increase activity</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

Check the Facts

Sometimes our reactions to certain events or situations can lead to extreme emotions. Maybe there is a time you noticed something that once felt like a huge deal, when in reality it was not as important. You can check the facts in the immediate moment to help decrease the intensity of emotions.

Ask yourself the following questions to check the facts:

1. What situation/experience/event triggered my emotion?
2. What interpretation (thoughts/beliefs) or assumptions am I making about the situation/event?
3. Does my emotion and its intensity match the facts of the situation? Or does it match my assumptions of the situation?
Manage difficult emotions by “Acting Opposite”
Examples of Opposite Action
