The College of Humanities and Social Sciences’ (H&SS) departments and programs offer students the breadth of a traditional liberal arts education in the humanities and social sciences while preparing them for a wide range of professions, for graduate school, and for advanced professional study in fields such as law, education, public administration, clinical psychology, and business.

H&SS provides many opportunities for students to be involved in faculty research projects, participate in professional internships and be active members of student clubs. Students may study in Washington, D.C. or in one of several overseas programs that take place during the regular academic year, summer, and intersession.
H&SS programs provide education that fosters students’ intellectual growth, teaching students to look deeply and critically at the world around them while preparing them to become professionals in their career paths.
