

Safe Food Handling Training

Academic Year 2009-2010

What is Safe Food Handling Training?

This training is designed to protect all members of the university community from injury or illness caused by campus public events that include the sales/distribution or providing of food, beverages, merchandise, and services. Training is provided by an Environmental Health and Instructional Safety trainer. Students must be currently enrolled through CSUF (non-extended education) to receive training.

Why Should I Attend?

Any student organization that wants to sponsor barbecues or hot/prepared food related events must attend a Safe Food Handling Training provided by Environmental Health and Instructional Safety. Students who successfully complete the training will receive a Food Handler Permit that will be valid for a two-year period. Food Handlers must wear their permits at all times during the food related event along with one form of identification. It is recommended that you review the Environmental Health and Instructional Safety website at <http://ehs.fullerton.edu> for more detailed information.
