A message from the

Student Affairs Transforms Lives is the start of a bold way forward. It is also the start of the new mission statement for the division that compliments a new set of core values and a new talent development statement that supports our new strategic plan. The mission is bold, visionary and sets our course for the future. Our 2013-18 Divisional Strategic Plan was revealed in October 2013 and aligns with the University’s Strategic Plan with a focus on five goals: Advising, Retention, Talent Development, Assessment, and the Titan Experience. You will see the new mission and the new strategic plan infused in this annual report and is evident in the work we do with our students every day.

We are thrilled to share our division’s achievements for the 2013-14 academic year in this annual report. The countless hours and immense effort dedicated to students individually and collectively are apparent in the outstanding accomplishments of our team.

We know that as the landscape of higher education and the needs of our students evolve, we as scholar-practitioners need to adapt to those changes. In doing so, our entire team has come together to enhance and expand resources and services for all students. For example, Cal State Fullerton made history in April 2014 by becoming the first CSU of 23 campuses to open a resource center for undocumented students, the Titan Dreamers Resource Center. This is the start of our work to achieve all of the goals of our plan.

I am confident that as a division we will continue to move forward to enhance student success as we stay true to our core values: Student-centeredness, Integrity, Diversity, Collaboration and Excellence.

I encourage you to read the report to learn more about the achievements of your colleagues across campus. The accomplishments contained in the report demonstrate that Student Affairs does indeed transform lives.

Be well,
Berenecea Johnson Eanes, Ph.D.

Their leadership effort were concentrated on the following: First-Year Experiences, Success Centers, Intrusive Advising, College-Based Theme Housing and Leadership Development, Scholarships and Recognition Ceremony, and College Weeks.

Themed-floor residence communities serving students from the Colleges of the Arts and Health and Human Development supported student engagement, enhanced the first-year experience and increased academic success. Residential living and learning communities help strengthen students’ personal growth, build a strong academic foundation, increase connection to the campus and create a sense of community through purposeful interactions with students, staff, faculty and administrators. In partnership with Housing and Residence Life, assistant deans also provided resources and services during the critical first-year transition to the University.

Bill Nye, “The Science Guy” was brought to campus as the keynote speaker for the 11th Annual Natural Sciences and Mathematics Inter-Club Council Symposium, which drew more than 1,000 attendees. Hundreds more viewed a live stream of the sold-out event, which was made possible through collaboration with the Division of Information Technology and Titan Communications.

- As a program area in the newly created Student Life and Leadership department, a new coordinator was hired to restore program stability and consistency. Under the leadership of a new coordinator, Volunteer Service Programs focused on nurturing long-term on- and off-campus relationships, while also seeking and developing new partnerships.

Students participate in 50-100 hours of service learning each year through the PHUN Hut and large outreach events such as health fairs and alcohol safety events. Working collaboratively in small groups of three to 15, students plan and execute events. In fact, many students complete academic internships through their work with the organization. ATHLETICS ACADEMIC SERVICES

Academic support counseling is designed to provide proactive academic monitoring and guidance for student-athletes confronting a variety of academic challenges. Regular individual meetings, occurring at least weekly, with Athletics academic counselors are designed to facilitate the development of study skills, such as note-taking, effective reading strategies, test preparation and time management. In addition, student-athletes are encouraged to follow-up directly with faculty members and are provided with referrals to additional campus academic support resources (i.e. tutoring, CAPS, DSS), as needed.

Academic support counseling is required for all incoming student-athletes (freshmen and transfers) with indicators suggestive of academic under-preparedness and continuing student-athletes failing to maintain at least a 2.5 cumulative GPA. In addition, academic support counseling is available for any student-athlete who feels they would benefit from participating in the program.

Athletics Academic Services works closely with coaches, the Office of Athletics Compliance and student-athletes to proactively identify student-athletes with indicators suggestive of academic under-preparedness and/or academic under-performance during the recruiting process and continuing throughout their careers at Cal State Fullerton.

Athletics Academic Services works closely with the Office of Athletics Compliance, Admissions and Records, and a faculty athletics representative to ensure student-athletes are retained and meeting Cal State Fullerton and NCAA continuing eligibility and retention benchmarks every semester. In order to participate in intercollegiate athletics, all student-athletes must be enrolled in at least 12 units. - Approximately $695,840 was raised in private gifts from individuals and foundations to support student scholarships, programming and operational expenses. Funding highlights include:

  ▪ A private gift to provide all incoming scholars with a new laptop for the upcoming year. This initiative was designed to help equip incoming scholars with the necessary technological tools to begin their college careers.

  ▪ Grant funding to hire two graduate assistants to support the program in outreach and programming efforts for the upcoming academic year.

  ▪ Grant funding to embark on a multi-campus network in partnership with Orange Coast and Golden West Colleges to increase each campuses ability to successfully support foster youth, develop strong bidirectional transfer pathways, and align local efforts to support foster youth scholars.

- Provided admission and program information to approximately 554 foster youth in the surrounding communities of Orange, Los Angeles, San Bernardino, Riverside, Ventura and San Diego counties.

FRESHMAN PROGRAMS

Freshman Programs promotes college success by providing learning communities designed to ensure first-year students’ effective transition from high school to higher education. Our curriculum and services create a foundation for academic achievement, campus involvement and community engagement. Freshman Programs challenges students to develop as individuals, scholars and citizens and to become life-long learners prepared for leadership roles in a diverse, global society.

We support first-year students through the UNIV 100 college success seminar, peer mentoring, a study and computing lounge, co-curricular field trips, integrated advising, leadership opportunities and the First Year Connection themed living-learning experience. Upper-division students can develop their leadership and service potential as UNIV 100 peer mentors, and graduate students apply theory to practice through fieldwork and internships in Freshman Programs.

The following are highlights from 2013-14:

• Completed an entry assessment of Freshman Programs’ students’ ideas about college life that will be used in retreat trainings and planning for 2014-15 co-curricular activities and support services.

• Conducted exit assessment focus groups in which participants credited Freshman Programs with “caring about them as people, not just as students,” and providing connections to a community as well as to campus resources and opportunities.

• 25 student leaders served as peer mentors in UNIV 100 sections. Through their hours of training and mentoring, each peer mentor earned recognition as an Advanced Mentor from the College Reading and Learning Association’s International Peer Mentor Certification program.

• Received Instructionally Related Activities Grants to support co-curricular field trips to the Getty Center and the Museum of Tolerance. Through these co-curricular experiences students develop connections with other learners, and between course content and the live museum experience.
• Recruited and trained 27 former Freshman Programs participants to serve as volunteers on the Peer Ambassador Committee (PAC). During March members participated in Welcome Rallies at 13 local high schools, where they represented the “face” of CSUF to over 1000 admitted students, as well as to high school guidance counselors, teachers and administrators. PAC members also volunteered at Welcome to CSUF Day and New Student Orientation.

• Supported graduate students in fulfilling fieldwork requirements for their degree. Six students served in UNIV 100 where they collaborated with a faculty member and peer mentor to support first-year students’ transition to college academics and campus life. Three fieldwork students learned about learning communities and residence life through overseeing the Pine Resource Center and collaborating with RAs and campus partners to develop co-curricular programming for residents. One master’s degree student conducted an assessment project designed to learn more about new students’ expectations for college life.

• Freshman Programs Director Dr. Nancy Fernandez attended the annual AAC&U meeting where she participated on a panel addressing systematic approaches to meet the potential of high-impact practices. Dr. Fernandez’ presentation discussed assessment results that show the positive effect of Freshman Programs learning communities and supplemental instruction on student persistence, grade point average (GPA) and graduation rates.
