In 1967, Professor John Irwin created Project Rebound as a way to matriculate people into San Francisco State University directly from the criminal justice system. The focus of Project Rebound quickly became: Education as an alternative to incarceration, and turning former prisoners to scholars. Since the program's inception, hundreds of formerly incarcerated people have obtained bachelor's degrees and beyond. In 2016, Project Rebound is moving beyond the confines of SF State onto eight other CSU campuses. With the help of a new team of professionals, Project Rebound will support students at CSU Fullerton, Fresno, Los Angeles, San Diego, San Bernardino, Sacramento, Pomona, and Bakersfield.

Campus and Community Support

Project Rebound also acts as a liaison between networks throughout the campus at-large as well as throughout the communities in and around the CSU campuses. We utilize a multitude of educational, tutorial, mentorship, and vocational resources. We focus on the whole student and provide referrals to counseling and networking with human service programs and community-based organizations that can best serve our student's needs. From prison to university and beyond, Project Rebound exists to support those who want to empower themselves and others through higher education. Programs like CSUF Project Rebound cannot exist without people like you who are willing to reach back and help those who have supported you. Through the Center for Internships & Student Engagement, Project Rebound can offer a student 3-5 units doing volunteer work for the program or work study via Federal Student Aid.

Would You Like to Get Involved with Project Rebound?

Please complete our confidential intake questionnaire on the other side of this sheet and return it to our office in Langsdorf Hall, LH-647.
