Challenges

• Continuing to maintain facilities and pay for improvements to meet the current enrollment, which makes it difficult to add new programs with the Operating Budget.

• Supporting California’s inflation-based Minimum Wage increases: January 1, 2023, $15.50 per hour; projected to continue in coming years.

• Providing easy access to basic needs services: the current decentralized locations require students to visit multiple locations, placing an additional burden on those who need help the most.

• Providing scholarships and awards that keep pace with inflation: most ASI scholarships have remained the same for decades while the cost of attendance continues to increase.

• Earning income from investments: investment income was reduced in the past year, forecasts indicate flat or decreasing returns in the coming years.

• Funding long-term retiree pension and benefit obligations: when financial obligations grow, ASI must use additional funds from the operating budget to meet them, which reduces the amount of funds available for student programs.
Challenges

- Providing support and space for new student programming initiatives.
- Meeting the campus’s emergent needs for additional fitness, nutrition, and wellness services:
  - SRC currently has no designated space for wellness programming and services.
- Providing adequate space for current recreation center users:
  - SRC was designed for 30,000 students, CSUF enrollment is approx. 40,000. Based on national rec center guidelines for square feet per student, the SRC is less than half the recommended size.
